4. “Xavier Veilhan: Autofocus” at Perrotin

The celebrated multidisciplinary French artist Xavier Veilhan is bringing a group of dazzling new figurative and architectural sculptures to the third floor of Perrotin’s New York gallery. Titled “For Autofocus,” the must-see show is a continuation of his experiments in movement and memory. Responding to the soaring double-height ceilings of the space, Veilhan’s figures are sculpted at different scales, ranging from life-size to monumental. “The work’s appearance is conditioned by the spectator’s gaze,” says the artist. Opens November 3
