5. “Paola Pivi: Free Land Scape” at the Perrotin, New York

At last month's Frieze New York, Paola Pivi was behind one of the art fair's most talked-about works, a sculpture of the Statue of Liberty with an emoji-like mask, inspired by her adopted son's extended immigration battle. A larger version, titled You know who I am, is on view on view at the High Line through next spring, and the artist also has a solo show at Perrotin featuring an immersive installation. Pivi takes over the gallery's third floor with Free Land Scape, a 100-foot-long denim tunnel.

Location: Perrotin, 130 Orchard Street, New York

Price: Free

Time: Monday–Friday, 10 a.m.–6 p.m.
